L.A. Log Reading

We read A Party for Bob in our anthology, and worked on noting details. Guided Reading lessons are going very well, and I appreciate you returning the bags. In the next week, books will become a little more difficult as I begin to raise expectations. There should be a few difficult spots in the reading, and you can refer to the reading strategies we use on our website!

Writing

We spent another week on expository writing! After reading nonfiction books about specific community helpers, we each made an individual web about a different community helper. We thought about the tools used, clothing worn, place of work, people helped, and the education that person needed for their job. On Thursday, we each wrote an individual paragraph on a community helper!
